also, notice:

cupids bow is much more defined in high cortisol and low perceived health. also, facial width is correlated with perceived health. wide set eyes and a mouth that lines of with pupils are also present.

people with a positive canthal tilt are typically attractive and attractive people have less cortisol than unattractive people, as they are less stressed lowering cortisol will not give you a positive canthal tilt having a positive canthal tilt and being attractive will lower your cortisol i don't know. i remember meeting a hyper-NT normie with a hot 6 foot tall gf who seemed veeeeeeery carefree and relaxed at all times. He had a very pronounced NCT... but was attractive still. Hyper-normie is the only way I could describe him, both in looks and personality. I wish I lived his life.

having a postive canthal tilt and being attarctive will lower your cortisol

Simply not true. The low cortisol version is not significantly more attractive than the high cortisol man. You are projecting your ideals of beauty onto the study. The low cortisol man looks very neotenous and feminine.

interestingly the high cortisol man looks more masculine all together, higher fWHR, less eyelid exposure, non arched low set brows, broader chin ect

Maybe high T hunter males just produce more cortisol as an evolutionary mechanism? interesting find anyways doughboy

the better your genetics the more of each hormone u secrete generally test estrogen etc

I meant as a male, you find positive canthal tilt/neoteny/femininity more attractive than women do. Even if it's on men. You are projecting your feminine ideals onto men.

Lol at the high bmi and cortisol face getting all the gains in face and neck. Back in reality, the higher cortisol you go the more you become a skinnyfat mess. Cortisol makes you gain weight in your gut and cheeks. You don't suddenly grow jawbone or neck circumference on cortisol.

Just Be Creepy (JBC). It's basically the idea that girls are turned on by guys being sexually assertive with consent. Rather than blab about some safe NT topic or try to guess where she's from like a PUA, JBC game is about communicating to the girl that you want to fuck her like an animal. It's premised on the idea that girls are turned on by two things: Looks and Perceived Sexual Performance (basically what they think you're going to be like in bed).

So what is the conclusion? Im on the phone and its fucking with me so i cannot read it atm.

For the record, I have slightly high cortisol levels, had it when natty and I have it still, its in the higher range.
